Strategic collaboration targets US$100M in assets under management through algorithmic Bitcoin trading

HONG KONG, Aug. 13, 2025 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- SOLOWIN HOLDINGS (NASDAQ: SWIN) ("Solowin" or the "Company"), a leading financial services firm providing comprehensive solutions across traditional and digital assets, today announced its plan to launch a joint Bitcoin quantitative fund with Antalpha, a Singapore-based global leader in digital asset management. The proposed fund targets US$100 million in assets under management (AUM) and employs a data-driven, algorithmic trading strategy to invest in Bitcoin.

Through its regulated subsidiary Solomon JFZ (Asia) Holdings Limited, Solowin offers high-net-worth and institutional investors a full range of financial services across both traditional and digital asset markets. With a strong presence in Hong Kong, the firm provides corporate finance, wealth management, asset management, and Web3 solutions. Its Solomon VA+ platform is the first in the region to integrate traditional and virtual asset trading with wealth management, enabling clients to manage diversified portfolios within a single ecosystem.

Antalpha is a leading fintech company providing financing, technology, and risk management solutions to institutions in the digital asset industry. As the primary lending partner of Bitmain—a leading designer ofapplication-specific integrated circuit (ASIC) chip for Bitcoin mining, Antalpha offers Bitcoin supply chain and margin loans via the Antalpha Prime platform, which enables clients to originate and manage digital asset loans and monitor collateral positions with near real-time data.
